Eisenhower Split With Dewey Seen

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Influential Eastern Republicans appear to be making little progress toward picking a candidate to back in the 1964 GOP presidential nomination race.

Reports that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has turned thumbs down on both Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller indicate a split with the old pro who helped the general become president—former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Dewey, who proved in three conventions from 1944 through 1952 that he knew how to get the nomination for himself or the man of his choice, has committed himself to Rockefeller as "the logical nominee."

The two-time presidential candidate took this action shortly after Rockefeller's marriage to the former Margaretta Murphy, and there has been no sign of any withdrawal of this commitment.

Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., remain loyal to Rockefeller. Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., who used to get in a plug for the New York governor now and then, recently has confined himself to saying that Rockefeller's marriage hasn't helped him politically.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., is beating the drums for Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania as a favorite son candidate. Scranton, who once thought Rockefeller would make a good nominee, now doesn't seem so sure.

Scranton, Gov. George Romney of Michigan, Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., and Gen. Lucius D. Clay reportedly drew mention from Eisenhower as men who ought not to be overlooked in the contest for the nomination.

Morton, a former Republican national chairman and now head of the GOP senatorial campaign committee, is well acquainted with party members from all of the states. But he says he hasn't even "hit the approach" of the bridge he would have to cross to bid for the nomination.

Morton denied on a taped radio program that the inclusion of his name on the general's list made him "Eisenhower's boy." But he indicated he thinks Eisenhower is likely to have some influence in the choice of a nominee.

"I'd say that whether he wants to be the leader or not, that Gen. Eisenhower today commands the respect of more Republicans than any other man," Morton said.

Morton said in response to questions he thinks that if Goldwater got the nomination "we'd have a good chance of winning the presidency."

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Joe A. Michie of Little Rock was appointed Tuesday as a survey analyst to study the possible consolidation of some of the urban services of the Little Rock and North Little Rock metropolitan areas.

High School Management Is Combined

James H. Jones, superintendent of schools announced today a reorganization of the administration of the junior and senior high schools. The junior and senior high schools will be combined into one administrative unit with Jack Beatty as principal. Don Silavan, who for the past three years has been a mathematics instructor in the High School, will serve as Assistant principal in charge of student personnel and extra-curricular activities.

Mr. Jones pointed out that this change was necessary to give more adoption and development of new courses of study, teaching aids, techniques and supervision of in Hope High School and Yerger High School. Secondary education is in a period of greatest change during this century. The results of many national study groups, such as the school mathematics study group, physical science study group, biological science study group, the chemistry study group, and others are being incorporated into texts for secondary schools.

These materials are intended to update text materials and includes modern concepts and application of mathematics and science. Each of these areas, as well as advancements in the techniques of teaching English, foreign language, social science, and business, must be explored and incorporated into the curriculum so that our students may be well informed and enjoy the advantage of being able to compete academically with students from other schools.

Along with new text materials, many new teaching devices and techniques are being introduced. More meaningful for both teachers and students. Much experimentation will be needed to develop techniques and methods in using overhead projectors for large group instruction. Teaching machines is another area for investigation. All of these new ideas are being put into use in some schools in a variety of programs. Mr. Beatty will have the responsibility of investigating and with the cooperation of the teaching staff, incorporating as many of these new ideas into our curriculum as is practical and economically feasible for our school.

Here Is the Background of Rail Strike Which Is Scheduled This Midnight

Editor's Note: This dispatch received before announcement of the railroad unions' rejection of Arthur Goldberg as mediator, is published because of its background material.

By JOHN KOENIG JR.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Railroad labor and management officials tell President Kennedy today whether they will let Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg arbitrate their work rules dispute to avert a scheduled nationwide strike at midnight.

The railroads' past performance in the years-long dispute indicated a willingness to go along with the extraordinary arbitration proposal made by the President Tuesday in a new move to avoid a walkout.

The five operating unions, which stand to lose some 65,000 jobs under the proposed work rules, drafted a reply to Kennedy, but refused to release it in advance of the 10 a.m. deadline set by Kennedy for both sides to report back to him.

However, there was one report Tuesday night that the decision had already been made to reject arbitration by Goldberg.

P. K. Byers, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was quoted by the Lewiston (Idaho) Morning Tribune as saying: "The decision has been made."

This was denied in Washington by the trainmen's president, Charles Luna, who said the Goldberg proposal had not been rejected up to an early hour this morning.

Both sides pledged full consideration of the President's proposal when it was presented to them.

Byers was quoted by the Tribune as saying: "We didn't reject Goldberg as arbitrator. If we would accept anybody as mediator, we would accept him above all others. What we are rejecting is arbitration."

Goldberg was Kennedy's secretary of labor until the President appointed him to the Supreme Court last August.

hear the proposal.

The group includes a four-man delegation from the carriers headed by chief negotiator J. E. Wolfe and the presidents of the five operating unions.

Kennedy's proposal was a surprise. A high-ranking government source affirmed that neither the carriers nor the unions were consulted previously.

There was no doubt that the choice of a Supreme Court justice to act as arbitrator was an extraordinary one. But the President let it be known that he considered the circumstances extraordinary with a nationwide railroad strike threatening "economic disruption, dislocation and distress."

The five unions—firemen, trainmen, engineers, conductors and switchmen—are poised to strike the moment the railroads carry out their announced intention of putting the new work rules into effect.

The new rules would eventually eliminate 65,000 jobs — 40,000 of them firemen. The total membership of the five unions is about 200,000.

The railroads say the jobs slated for elimination are "featherbedding" or make-work jobs which cost them $600 million a year. The unions claim the jobs are necessary for safe operation of the trains. The dispute has been building toward a climax for about four years.

Regarded as the biggest variable was congressional reaction to an actual strike. The idea was advanced that Kennedy's unusual proposal reflected uncertainty as to what Congress would do to meet the situation.

Remaining as possible steps should the strike actually develop were compulsory arbitration, government seizure of the railroads, or a combination of the two.

Roy E. Davidson, head of the Independent Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said he did not believe the idea for the Goldberg arbitration proposal was Kennedy's at all.

"It's the Labor Department's," said Davidson. "It sticks out all over it."

It was announced that Goldberg, vacationing in the Virgin Islands, would work on the dispute while the Supreme Court is in summer recess. Goldberg already has disqualified himself from taking part in any case before the bench hanging on the dispute.

Congress reacted favorably for the most part to the decision to put the matter in Goldberg's

U.S. Has No Luck Aiding Dictators

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has had tough luck with some of its dictator friends.

There's President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam.

When the French gave up fighting the Communists in 1954, the United States, which had been helping the French, then started helping Diem. It's been helping him ever since. It's poured more than $2 billion into Viet Nam.

It has also sent in 12,000 military men as advisers in his war against the Communist guerrillas. A number of these American servicemen have been killed. The cost of this military aid is running around $500 million a year.

Diem still hasn't rallied the Vietnamese people to his support in any wholehearted way.

And defeat of the Communists doesn't look any closer than it did nine years ago after the French quit.

Then there was Fulgencio Batista.

He was the Cuban dictator from 1952 until Jan. 1, 1959, when Fidel Castro drove him out and set up a brand new dictatorship. The American-Batista relationship had been profitable from a money standpoint.

During his regime trade between Cuba and the United States ran more than $400 million a year.

Castro had begun the war on Batista in 1956. From then until a few months before Batista fled, the United States shipped him arms. When Castro later complained about this, the State Department had an explanation:

"The arms were meant for hemisphere defense but Batista misused them."

Then there is Dr. Francois Duvalier of Haiti, the 54-year-old doctor and expert on voodooism.

He got himself elected for a six-year term in 1957 and at once became a dictator with an army of 5,000 men. He distrusted the army so much he set up his own secret army, or secret police, numbering 10,000.

Then Duvalier arranged to succeed himself for another six years, starting May 15. This caused so much commotion it looked for a while as if his enemies might throw him out. Relations between the two countries grew miserable.

Duvalier stayed. And when his personal physician, Dr. Jacques Fourcand, in a public speech denounced the United States as a

8 Rail Crew Changes in 16-Hour Run

EDITOR'S NOTE — Proposed work rules changes that would eventually eliminate 65,000 jobs are at the core of a threatened nationwide railroad strike. The firemen contend the jobs are unnecessary. The unions insist they must protect the jobs of their members.

By ROGER LANE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A Chicago-Denver train, taking 16½ hours to cover 1,034 miles, changes engine crews eight times en route, roughly every 130 miles.

Employees average two hours in the cab, collect one and one-quarter day's pay.

Railroads contend such use of manpower and payroll money is wasteful and have vowed to change the work rules that require it.

Unions representing the men who would lose their jobs have threatened a nationwide strike to protect them.

For the railroads, $600 million a year paid for what they consider make-work jobs — "featherbedding"—is at stake.

At issue for nearly 200,000 firemen, engineers, switchmen, conductors and brakemen are the jobs of up to 65,000 of them.

About 40,000 of the jobs that would be eliminated are held by firemen. This is the single biggest group, although there are scores and scores of others, all wrapped up in the disputed work rules, in effect management — union contracts.

Railroad executives say the roles of firemen on freight train diesel locomotives and in switchyard service are obsolete.

The need for firemen, they argue, disappeared starting about 20 years ago. That was when automatically fueled diesel engines began to replace coal-burning locomotives. Whose fires were stoked by firemen.

Unions contend that although his title is outmoded, the fireman is important as a copilot for the engineer.

"The helper acts as a second pair of eyes, a lookout," a union spokesman said. "He performs a safety function."

H. E. Gilbert, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, says 190 train crewmen were killed in accidents in a recent year.

On most work rule points, a presidential railroad commission reported to President Kennedy in February 1962 that it agreed with the management position. The commission studied railroad operating practices for 15 months.

Simon H. Rifkind, a former federal judge who headed the commission, was emphatic about firemen, holding they no longer were needed.

"Of that I'm certain. I went out and saw for myself," Rifkind told newsmen.

The commission recommended a halt in hiring of firemen for freight and yard service duty, dismissal within a year of 13,000 firemen with less than 10 years service and release by attrition—death, retirement and the like—of 27,000 others.

Displaced firemen would get dismissal pay of up to 60 per cent of regular checks for up to 36 months, preference in rehiring and

'Sit-ins' Plague Rocky and Wagner

NEW YORK (AP)—Demonstrators staged sit-ins today at the offices of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Mayor Robert F. Wagner, demanding more jobs in construction trades for Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

The demonstration at Rockefeller's office began this morning when four white and three Negro participants slipped past a security officer at the governor's city office and sat down. Two of the demonstrators were women.

A spokesman said the demonstration would continue around the clock until their demands are met. There was no disorder. The governor was not present. He and his wife are vacationing in Seal Harbor, Maine.

The sit-in at Wagner's office by seven other persons, five of them Negroes, began Tuesday and continued today.

The mayor avoided them Tuesday by taking a rear passage to his office, but he walked past them going to and from lunch. He also conferred with his leaders. Later he left for Paris to visit his sick son.

Both demonstrations were sponsored by the Congress of Racial Equality and the Joint Committee on Equal Opportunity.

Pickets with similar aims appeared at a housing project on the Lower East Side.

Tuesday night white hecklers clashed with pickets from CORE near a Bronx diner, scene of racial disorders for four straight nights.

Southern State 2nd Term 15th

MAGNOLIA — Southern State College will hold registration for the second summer session from 8 a. m. to 2 p. m. Monday, July 15, in the field house, according to Dr. D. C. Andrew, academic dean.

New courses to be offered not on the summer schedule are Chemistry 234, organic chemistry for agriculture and home economics majors, 9 a. m. Monday through Saturday, and Business Controls, to be offered at 6:30 p. m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Visiting professors for the second session will be Henry Wood of Texarkana Junior College, who will teach U. S. History, and Thomas E. Douglas of the University of Arkansas, who will teach Shakespeare and Introduction to Literature.

Donald Carl Baldrige, who has been appointed assistant professor of history at Southern State for 1963-64, will also teach History of Civilization during the second session.

Registration will be held at 8 a. m. for seniors, 9 a. m. for juniors, 10 a. m. for sophomores and special students, and 1 p. m. for freshmen and transfer students. Classes will begin at 7:30 a. m. Tuesday. Most classes will be held in air-conditioned classrooms, Andrew said.

Here's a Comedian Who Never Had a Comedian's Main Stage Prop — a Wife

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Aside from a funny hat and baggy pants, the most traditional prop of a comedian has been his wife.

Marriage enables him to stand up in public and deliver such deathless lines as:

"My wife is so crazy about me she'd put a burnt offering before me every morning—except I don't like toast for breakfast."

"My wife is so dumb that when she was cleaning house last week it took her three days to throw away a boomerang."

Milt Kamen is an unusual comedian. He's a bachelor. This cuts him out of telling wife jokes, mother-in-law jokes and father-in-law jokes—half the repertoire of many a standard comic.

Despite this handicap, Kamen, by developing his own wry brand of hilarity, has become a top night club comedian, straight actor, and a rising young television panelist.

Why doesn't he marry?

"I'm emotionally ready for marriage," Milt admitted eagerly.

"What bothers me is—I'm not emotionally ready for divorce. Sometimes I feel sad because I realize I am denying some nice girl alimony."

But he's reasonably sure he'll never wed an actress.

"Before you can finish telling an actress why you love her, her mind begins to wander," he remarked. "She starts thinking about her own career problems."

"My weakness is waitresses, not actresses. Anybody who serves me food I automatically put down as a nice person."

Kamen, reared in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn that produced members of the Murder, Inc., mob, came up the long, hard, tough, lonesome way.

"I had to fight every day when I was five years old," he recalled. "Andy by the time I was seven I was punchy."

"I was brought up in an orphan asylum. I have no complaints about that. I was well-treated. But I feel lucky because I escaped getting an institutional mentality. A lot of kids don't."

Rail Strike Now in Lap of Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—Union rejection blocked today the White House proposal to head off a nationwide railroad strike through arbitration by Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, but President Kennedy kept a glimmer of hope flickering.

Both sides in the dispute over work rules were kept on a stand-by basis for another effort to prevent the stoppage planned by on-train workers at 12:01 a.m. local time across the country.

The President put the negotiators on 30-minutes notice for another session.

Pierre Salinger, presidential press secretary, said there was no definite time.

The carriers agreed to the Kennedy proposal with the statement: "We accept."

Kennedy immediately went into a huddle with Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, Undersecretary James Reynolds and White House counsel Theodore Sorensen.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A union turnout scuttled today President Kennedy's proposal to head off a crippling midnight railroad strike through arbitration by Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg. Kennedy promptly called in his legislative leaders.

There was no word from the White House immediately on what was under discussion with the top Democrats from the Capitol not even official disclosure that they were on hand.

Speculation quickly centered on the possibility that the administration was near the point of giving up on efforts to get agreement among the parties and was turning to Congress for emergency legislation.

That might take the form of a law for compulsory arbitration or seizure of the rail carriers, or both.

There was no disposition to hope, however, that congressional action could come in time for the deadline at 12:01 a.m. local time Thursday.

Still on the record officially, however, was an indication from Kennedy that he might have something else coming up. He kept the negotiators on standby basis for further conferences.

The President had indicated he would give the disputants word at noon on whether he wanted to talk to them again.

But that time passed with no word.

Principally at issue are plans to eliminate some 40,000 firemen's jobs in freight and yard service, and trim off about 25,000 workers the railroads contend they no longer need.

SHOEMAKER'S CHILDREN!

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: My husband is a procrastinator. This wouldn't be the problem if it were not building our house himself and hasn't yet got around to putting on the roof. At first it seemed heaven after eight years of a cat-and-dog existence at my mother's.

But by now I'm sick and tired of this makeshift life; furniture still in packing cases; no closets to hang clothes in; cooking for five (we've got three kids) on a two-burner oil stove.

I will say that the rumpus room in which we camp out is everything you could ask for: pickled pine walls, native stone fireplace, pegged walnut floor and natural wood cabinets for the children's toys—but we keep our clothes there now.

As you may gather, my husband is a perfectionist as well as a procrastinator. If and when he ever gets done with the upper floors, we'll certainly have a dream house. But, as of now, I'm of the opinion we'll all be in our graves before that happens. His favorite word being "manana!"

We're married 10 years. The first two were blissful then my father died and to make things easier for my mother, we and our little boy (his two little sisters hadn't yet been born) went to live with her.

I stuck up for my husband right or wrong. This hurt Mama. Three years ago I talked him into getting a home of our own. That was easy but, instead of buying a house, he insisted upon building it. He finds time to teach carpentering at the Y, bowl and tinker with the car week-ends. I nag and we fight. I crave affection. He doesn't.

The unfinished house, the worry about Mother being alone and my rapidly disintegrating marriage have me completely down. Can you offer a ray of hope—Depressed Wife

Dear Depressed Wife: What a typically human saga! The shoe-maker's children, somebody said years ago, go barefoot. You, the wife of a carpenter are roofless while he pursues diversions ruthlessly.

There's a small cog missing in your man's home-making gear system. He lacks incentive to floor and roof of your nest. Why? That's the question you have to deal with. My hunch is that your move to your mother's house was a mistake, because it interrupted the continuity of your husband's commitment to provide adequate shelter for you and your children. He coasted all those years under another roof and left because the climate got a little warm.

That, however, is split milk. Let's look at some possible solutions to your present dilemma.

Scolding and nagging usually drive the victim deeper into his shell of inertia. Often a light-hearted view of a serious problem is the key to its solution. Borrow enough umbrellas to provide you and each of your children with one and some evening when your husband returns from the "Y" carpentering class, raise the umbrellas and stage a little picket line, marching around the rumpus room, chanting together: "Daddy, dear, build us a roof."

He may flip his lid, and then decide to provide one. If that doesn't work, suggest to him that he enlist the aid of his "Y" carpentering class in completing your home. It could be treated as a practical lesson. Should he veto that, resort to extreme measures. Earn the money yourself to pay outside carpenters for roofing the house.

Dear Helen: I am a lonesome young man in a factory where older men work. Being bashful I don't make friends easily, especially with girls. If I ran around, drank and raced my car, maybe I'd have better luck. How can I enlarge my acquaintance without resorting to a Lonely Hearts Club? Could you give me a few tips? —All Alone

Dear All Alone: Find out where the girls are, then head there. At this season of the year, summer resorts offer a happy hunting ground for the detached male—there always being a dearth of men. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "Don't Be Lonely!"

Dear Helen: My mother hardly ever mentions sex to me. I realize I'm not very old—just 11—but she treats me as if I were a baby. Aside from this she is absolutely wonderful. How can I make her realize that I am growing up? —Confused

Dear Confused: A mother is the last to see what is right under her nose! She'll soon recognize your transformation from babyhood but even then may be reluctant to discuss sex with you. Take the initiative. Introduce the subject yourself.

Have your a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Valve Put in Heart of Infant

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—A clicking in the chest of her baby daughter is the sound of life for Mrs. Albert Mazzari.

The noise comes from an artificial valve built into the baby's heart June 18 to correct a defect.

Theresa Mazzari, 11-months-old, came home from a New York City hospital Monday. "When it is quiet in the room," said her mother, "I can hear a click coming from inside Theresa."

Dr. Dennison Young, head of the Montefiore Hospital child heart clinic, said Theresa is believed to be the first infant to have an artificial valve in the heart.

Gilbert rejected the commission report as "harsh, inhumane and retrogressive."

He assailed a recommendation for arbitration of conflict over changes in sizes of train crews.

"You can submit working conditions to binding arbitration sometimes," said Gilbert, "but you don't submit the life and death of jobs."

It recommended abandonment of the 100-mile day, once widely regarded as a fair day's work, as no longer realistic. It proposed 160 miles instead.

Unions answered that the commission position would mean longer hours and less pay. Engineers would take pay cuts of up to 80 per cent, they said.

JFK Gives Trade Boost on Journey

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Mending American trade and financial fences with Europe doubtless got attention from President Kennedy on his recent trip along with his preoccupation with political and nuclear arms pacts.

The United States needs increased exports to fight its loss of dollars and gold to foreigners. Put the other way around, the United States needs to have European trade barriers lowered rather than raised, if our exports are to flourish.

But the European Common Market is moving toward uniform tariffs against outside goods including American. In some European countries this uniform wall could mean higher tariffs on American products, rather than lower, because at present the levies vary markedly from country to country.

President Kennedy and President Antonio Sealtay announced their two nations would work toward greater volume of trade between the two countries.

Much of the outcome of U.S. attempts to lower trade barriers still depends on the attitude of President Charles de Gaulle of France. On his upcoming visit to Germany, DeGaulle may discuss with German officials how they reacted during the presidential trip to any American proposals for lowering trade barriers.

Along with improving trade relations with Europe, President Kennedy's trip may have had some bearing on building still higher the defenses of this and other Western nations against any speculative runs on their currencies.

The United States, powerful and prosperous as it is, needs such defenses now. The persisting growth of dollar assets held by foreigners puts pressure on the dollar and increases the potential threat on our gold reserves, dwindling from time to time as foreign banks turn in their dollars for gold.

European central banks and the U.S. Treasury and Federal Reserve Board have a pact that so far this year has held these gold losses to a minimum despite a rise in the trade deficit. But even this dam couldn't hold forever, if U.S. deficit built the dollar reserves abroad ever higher and higher.

'Subsidy,' Says NAACP of Schools

WASHINGTON (AP)—The head of the Congress of Racial Equality urged Congress today to get the federal government out of the business of "subsidizing segregation" in education.

National Director James Farmer called for enactment of a quick cutoff of federal aid from schools that practice racial discrimination.

"This is a moral issue," Farmer told a House Education and Labor subcommittee. "There can be no dilly dallying with an issue as clear as this."

The subcommittee is considering bills that would force an end to federal aid for educational institutions practicing discrimination. Farmer called for enactment of such a measure instead of the provision in President Kennedy's civil rights bill which would authorize an end to federal aid at the discretion of federal officials.

The House group was one of three holding hearings today on various aspects of the civil rights program, and President Kennedy arranged to meet with representatives of women's organizations in a further effort to ease racial tensions.

The Senate Commerce Committee was questioning Asst. Atty. Gen. C. Burke Marshall about a bill to ban racial discrimination by stores, hotels, restaurants and other establishments serving the public.

Marshall said Monday that if the bill was passed, "There would not be any significant establishments that would not be covered."

Before another House subcommittee, Undersecretary of Welfare Ivan Nestingen testified that the current Manpower Training Act fails to reach undereducated youth, a large proportion of whom he said are Negroes. He testified on behalf of Secretary Anthony J. Celebrezze in asking changes.

The administration proposes an amendment to the act that would provide basic education for a year to make an individual eligible for job training. It is also proposing to lower the eligibility age for training allowances from 19 to 16 to increase the amount of money for youth training.

Farmer said CORE favors legislation to remove the tax-exempt status of school bonds issued by school districts that discriminate.

He said discrimination in education is at the root of racial problems. "Children attending the segregated schools learn to live segregated lives," Farmer said. The Senate, 7th graf 111-4a21

Acting Director for A.M. & N.

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP)—Dr. Victor Starlard, formerly assistant director for freshman studies at Arkansas A&M Negro College at Pine Bluff, will become acting director, replacing Dr. Jesse Marshall, who resigned Monday.

Cry of Slum Dwellers Gets Action

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP)—"My baby was bitten by a rat last night—the third time. The landlord says we don't have rats—"

"The ceiling is about to fall in the bathroom. We're afraid to take baths."

"I have seven children. Last winter we had no heat. Now we have no water. I've been to one agency after another—"

The calls pour in—pathetic recitations of how families are trying to live in incredible filth and privation in America's largest city.

The women handling the five constantly ringing telephones feel pity, anger—but not despair. Not anymore. They know they're doing something to help these victims of callous landlords and cumbersome municipal bureaucracy.

Thirty women volunteers of "Call for Action" are pioneering a new kind of joint public service by broadcasters and private citizens.

Radio station WMCA, headed by a crusading president, R. Peter Straus, announces Call for Action's information service regularly on the air.

As the calls come in, the women refer them to the right agency among the nearly dozen concerned with enforcing city housing laws.

"But we don't stop with straightening out which agency—and they overlap pitifully," says Mrs. Lou, is G. Cowan, co-chairman with Mrs. Samuel Hartwell. "We keep running records on the status of each complaint. We follow up with phone checks and make on the scene inspections. We go to court to see how the cases are handled. And we keep files on landlords."

Arkansan Gets Air Force Nod

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Lt. Col. Austin F. Freeman of Arkadelphia has been named commander of the 9423d Air Force Reserve Recovery Squadron at Hot Springs, succeeding Lt. Col. W. R. Terrell, who retired.

Trial of 3rd Is Begun in Rush Murder

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—Testimony was to begin today in the first degree murder trial of Carolyn Brown, 20, of Fort Smith, the third defendant to be tried in the fatal shooting of Paul Rush.

The 56-year-old Rush, owner of the V&R Sales Co. in Fort Smith, was slain around midnight May 13, 1962, in the basement of his firm.

Frederick Rush, 26, of Fort Smith, stepson of the victim, has been tried, convicted, sentenced to life in prison. He has appealed to the state Supreme Court and is free on $50,000 bond.

Raymond Wood, 21, of Roland, Okla., the second to be tried, was acquitted.

The state contends that Miss Brown and the younger Rush conspired to get the elder Rush to the store the night of the killing and had plotted the murder.

Defense attorneys said the young Rush, Miss Brown and Wood were accused of the murder because Mrs. Pat Taylor, 24, of Fort Smith, loved the younger Rush, but she spurned her affections.

An all-white jury of 10 men and two women was seated Monday for the trial.

We can put out at random cards that show an owner has paid 80 fines, which is still cheaper than fixing the ceilings or getting rid of rats."

Goulet and Lawrence to Wed Aug. 12

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Show business marriage Canadian style is outlined by singer Robert Goulet, who will wed Carol Lawrence Aug. 12.

The Broadway stars plan to marry at the Plaza Hotel in New York, during a brief holiday from a concert tour which they will make during most of the summer. She is the immensely talented actress who starred in "West Side Story." He is the skyrocketing Lynceolot of "Camelot" whose career has spread to television (CBS contract), albums (Columbia records), night clubs and film ("His and Hers" at MGM this fall).

They are here on double missions, professional and personal. He has been breaking records at Coconut Grove and she has been filming a "Wagon Train. Meanwhile they have been searching for a house to share when he returns for the MGM movie.

Over breakfast one late morning he explained how they had met. "It was backstage at Camelot," he said. "She came back to say hello to Roddy McDowall, who introduced her to me. I must say neither of us was impressed.

"We met once more, rather casually, and nothing happened. We were still unimpressed. It wasn't until we did a television show, 'The Enchanted Nutcracker,' that we began to notice each other. Then it all began.

Goulet was born 29 years ago in Lawrence, Mass., but moved to Edmonton, Alberta, when he was 14. His Canadian upbringing may have something to do with his stern view of his future marriage.

"I have told Carol that after we are married she will be first a wife and second an actress, he remarked. "That is the only way that our marriage would make any sense. I can't have her going off to Arabia for six months to make a picture.

"In some matters I alone will make the decisions. In others the

PANAMA FLAG IS Still at Canal
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
PANAMA (AP)—Federal District Judge Guthrie F. Crowe has dismissed an American's suit to bar Panama's flag from flying alongside the Stars and Stripes in the Panama Canal Zone.

Lawyers for the American, Gerald A. Doyle, said they were considering an appeal. Doyle, an employee of the Panama Canal Co., contended that Panama's flag flying over the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone was against the best interests of the United States.

The United States and Panama agreed last October to display the flags side by side after years of protests and demonstrations by Panamanians.

Silver Price Higher Than Coin Value

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The price of silver on the futures market in London has been pushed above the monetary value of US government stocks. The cash price in New York has risen this week to a whisker of the official price. But don't start melting down your silver coins. They're worth more as they are in the metals markets.

The US Treasury has enough silver on hand to maintain its official valuation thanks to the recent direction by Congress to stop backing $1 and $2 bills with the metal.

The Treasury can use this released hoard for its increasing coinage needs without competing with other consumers in the London market.

Silver dealers say the Treasury stock hangs over the market to prevent any runaway prices for industrial or art uses here at home—although consumers are resigned to having to pay more for their supplies.

The price rise on the world markets—and the steadily mounting demands that back that increase—comfort many mining operators in the United States. Silver thus becomes for them a profitable by-product of their main lines of copper, lead and zinc—and at a time when lead and zinc prices themselves are firming.

The spot price for silver on the price-setting London market rose on Tuesday to $12.92 an ounce. For August delivery the price went to $12.97 or higher, with as much as $130.85 an ounce bid for delivery in June 1964.

The monetary value of the US government's silver stocks is $1-2.929 an ounce. In New York the cash price was lifted by dealers .03 cent an ounce Monday to $1-2.88.

The spurt in price this week was credited to active buying in London due to increased demand by some European nations for both coinage and industrial uses.

Consumption of silver worldwide has been running well above mine output. Electronics and various space age devices have increased the use of the metal. Affluent societies both here and abroad have increased their buying of household and other silver objects. And the number of silver coins needed for vending machines, turnstiles and generally higher consumer purchases has put a strain on many nations' mints.

THE LOSS LEADERS

By STEVE APRIL

At first Jack thought she stood out among the impatient women milling around the "Complaint" window because she wasn't holding a package to return. But on second glance he knew she stood out because she was young, tall, the graceful figure, exciting face framed by dark hair. Leaving his desk, Jack told the window clerk, "Give you a hand." Then, smiling at the tall girl, he asked, "Something wrong?"

"The store advertised a $75 portable typewriter for $25. I traveled more than 50 miles, was pushed and mauled reaching the counter—only to be told all the machines are sold! Can I buy the one in the window?"

"That's a sample and it's a store rule never to sell samples."

"But I need a typewriter, come all the way in from Shady Harbor!"

"Sorry, rules are rules," Jack said sadly, knowing she was lying. He hated people small enough to become liars for the sake of a bargain.

"Whole thing's a gyp. You dangle a few bargains merely to get the people into the store, like sheep, and then—"

"Correct," he said coldly, "but it isn't a gyp. It's smart merchandising. These items are loss leaders. It pays us to sell them for a loss because people will come in and buy other items; once they're in the store, and Miss, next time you dream up a corny story, pick some other town. Shady Harbor is charming because it's so small everybody knows each other. You see, I live there!"

As she turned away, Jack had a brief glimpse of her flushed face, bright and angry eyes, the heavy red lips open as if she'd been slapped.

For the rest of the afternoon Jack couldn't forget her. It annoyed him that she had cheapened herself to buy a typewriter. But then he'd seen shoplifters who'd looked like debutantes.

At 6 p.m. Jack punched out, made his usual wild dash to the station, caught the 6:15 with less than a second to spare as usual. He sat next to Dave London, an ad man who commuted daily from the Harbor. They talked about outdoors and fishing, but the girl's angry face remained in Jack's mind. Finally, he told Dave, "A tall girl with dark hair and a wonderful face came into the store, claimed she'd come all the way from the Harbor to buy a sale typewriter. Got me steamed, lying over a—"

"Good figure, hot looking!" Dave cut in.

Jack nodded, went pale as he asked, "She really lives in the Harbor?"

"Name's Alice Coles a writer. Rented one of Mrs. Maltz's rooms last night. My wife mentioned it."

Reaching the Harbor Jack headed for his house and there was Alice, sitting on the steps. Before he could stammer an apology, she snapped, "I'm only here to prove I don't lie, you junior

Goldwater 'Hot', Says Faubus

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus said Monday that if the 1964 presidential elections were held today Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., would have a "pretty good chance" of carrying Arkansas. Faubus declined to say what he thought Goldwater's chances would be 1 1/2 years from now.

stuffed shirt!

"Really, I'm terribly sorry for the liar is that phony store you work for! Loss leaders! I bet they never had a single machine on sale!"

"Three typewriters were for sale," Jack began, but Alice walked away. "Alice!"

"She stopped. 'How did you know my name, Jack?'"

"Never mind! Look, I have a typewriter you can borrow. Minute we have another sale, I'll put one aside for you."

"Well," Alice hesitated. "My old machine was broken in moving and I have a deadline. Thank you, Jack." She extended her hand.

He mumbled, "Wait right here. I'll get the type." And holding her hand he added, "I suddenly feel so—so—tender!"

"Sounds silly," Alice said, "but a delicious glow actually went through me. As if I'll never feel quite this happy again!"

Of course, they didn't realize they had both felt Nature's loss leader, that tremendous emotional peak reached only once in a lifetime when the two people ready for each other meet, get ready for the biggest bargain of their lives—their selves!

Family Type Billiard Room Boom

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a boom in this area in gleaming new family-center-type billiard parlors and please don't call them pool rooms.

They're a far cry from the smoky, dimly lit pool rooms of our youth, and if they call this progress we're against it.

"Stay away from the pool room and don't go near those bums," was the stern admonition heard daily and just as often ignored in our neighborhood in the long ago.

We never could figure out why the older folk were so dead set against the teen-agers getting a higher education in these fascinating classrooms.

For one thing we discovered that you could learn arithmetic and geometric angles a lot faster by losing hard-earned dimes to a pool hustler than we could in school.

None of the kids who held club meetings in the neighborhood pool room ever failed in arithmetic.

Any kid with a good car could learn fractions quicker by reading the figures on the odds at the various race tracks as posted on the state board in chalk, than in school.

The sharp characters who figured up the race odds at the tracks, before pari-mutuel machines were used, were a lot smarter and faster than any of the teachers we ever knew.

Any guy who could figure out a Dutch book, and get enough scratch together to beat it has to rate as a mathematical genius in our book.

A Dutch book was an overloaded listing of the odds on a race. Instead of coming to 100 per cent it would come to say 90 or 95 per cent. By betting certain amounts of money on each horse in the race you had to make money. You had to be quick to spot these slight miscalculations and quicker even to get your money down to make these bets.

There were some teachers—and their pupils—of higher mathematics of Pool Room U. who used to make a living by watching odds boards for just these errors.

Few of the college kids we know

East German Fugitive Safe

BERLIN (AP)—An East German border guard fired about 20 shots at a refugee but the man escaped unharmful to the West today.

The East German, 20, made his dash for freedom across a railroad yard on the border between the French sector and East Berlin.

Apathy Is Hurting Boxing

EPPING, N.H. (AP)—Apathy is hurting boxing and inactivity may do the same to heavyweight champion Sonny Liston, former heavyweight king Jack Sharkey says.

Sharkey blames the easy life of the times for the decline of the ring sport he loves.

"It's easy to point out why boxing and the interest in it is fading," Sharkey said. "All the kids look for today is the easiest way out. When I was a kid it was nothing for me to walk two or three miles for a loaf of bread. We were in shape in those days, we had to be."

"You can count on one hand today the number of real contenders in each division throughout the country. As a matter of fact, I bet you can't name three in each division that are strong contenders. At least I can't."

How about the coming Liston Floyd Patterson rematch in Las Vegas?

"One thing stands out in my mind," Sharkey said. "This year's layoff may have hurt Liston more than Patterson."

"Sonny is more of a glory boy. In the long run, that could hurt."

Gas Chamber for Slayer of Skier

By BILL STALL

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Thomas Lee Bean faced death in the Nevada gas chamber after being convicted of first degree murder Monday in the April 5 dismemberment-slaying of Sonja McCaskie, 24, former Olympic skier.

The 18-year-old high school youth, described at his trial as a rejected, unloved boy, stared at the jury foreman, Joseph Dettling, as the death penalty recommendation was read.

Dist. Judge Grant L. Bowen set July 15 for sentencing. Dist. Atty. William Raggio said the judge must follow the jury's recommendation.

Defense attorney Harry Anderson said he probably will appeal, depending on whether Bean wants a chance to escape the gas chamber. He said the boy, son of an itinerant salesman, had made a second attempt on his life in Washoe County jail last Tuesday.

The first try, a wrist-cutting episode in May, was disclosed by a sheriff's deputy on the witness stand during the trial which began June 24.

The attorney never refuted Bean's admission that he strangled

Trade Breaks Up 'Fearsome 4,' Gridiron

By BOB GREEN

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Giants' famed defensive unit, the "Fearsome Foursome," is no more.

The Giants broke up the vaunted front line unit by trading tackle Roosevelt Grier to Los Angeles Monday for tackle John Lovetere and a high draft choice.

Grier, 31, a 6-foot-5, 290-pounder, combined with tackle Dick Modzelewski and ends Jim Katcavage and Andy Robustelli on the Giants' front line that helped win five Eastern Division titles and one National Football League championship.

Lovetere, 27, is 6-foot-4 and weighs 285. He has been in the league five seasons and three times has been chosen as the Rams top lineman.

"The Rams initiated the trade to strengthen their line," said Giant coach Allie Sherman. "They feel that'll be an asset to the defense. But we feel it will help us, too, because in addition to getting Lovetere, the deal should solidify our backfield."

Sherman plans to use the draft choice as bait for a deal for a top running back.

Grier, who will be starting his eighth season in the league, and the other three members of the Giants' defensive unit played together every minute of every season since 1956, except for 1957 when Grier was in the Army and a few games toward the end of the 1960 season when Katcavage was hurt.

At Los Angeles, Grier will join Harland Sware, an old teammate on the Giants and now Ram head coach.

"I rank him one of the top tackles in the league," Sware said. "All of his training and playing has been under the type of defense we will be teaching."

The Giants said Lovetere had impressed them in pre-season games.

Lovetere attended Compton Junior College but did not play football there. He was signed by the Rams as a free agent after he had played service football.

Miss McCaskie, a native of Elgin, Scotland, raped her and then dismembered her body. But through the testimony of a San Francisco psychiatrist Anderson sought to prove that Bean should be acquitted because, although rational in some areas, he did not know right from wrong in a sexual sense. Bean had pleaded innocent.

Bean was caught eight days after the slaying after officers traced a camera missing from Miss McCaskie's apartment to a pawn shop.

A divorcee and mother, Miss McCaskie skied for Great Britain in the 1960 Winter Olympics at nearby Squaw Valley, Calif., and on the British team in European competition the next year. She was a secretary for a Reno meat packing firm and gave ski lessons on weekends at a resort near Reno.

But the crowd loved Mays. And Willie earned every bit of their adoration.

He got only one hit, a sharp, run-scoring single. But he scored twice, drove in two runs, stole two bases and, of course, made the best catch, even if it didn't match some of his more spectacular catches.

That was in the eighth inning when the "Say, Hey Kid" ambled to the center field fence, 380 feet, to haul in Peppitone's fly. Willie banged his right toe against the wire fence, limped in pain for several seconds, then leisurely jogged to the dugout.

"Now, I didn't hurt myself," he said later. "Not even a bruise. I can't afford to hurt myself. I

Nationals Found May Good Thing

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—It's a good thing Willie Mays was there.

Willie was not the whole show. He had help in leading the National League to a 5-3 all-star victory over the American League Tuesday.

But without the brilliant San Francisco center fielder, the 34th All-Star show would have been a bust.

First of all, only 44,160 paying customers attended, filling about half of the huge Municipal Stadium. The players and club owners were keenly disappointed. Conservative estimates had been for between 60,000 and 70,000.

The customers also were disappointed but for another reason. They had paid $6 and $8 a ticket to see the greatest National League stars, some of them for the first time. But they never got to see Sandy Koufax, the senior circuit's best pitcher; Warren Spahn, who keeps on defying age and enemy batters with reckless abandon; and Juan Marichal, San Francisco's superb young right-handed star who recently defeated Spahn in a spectacular 16-inning 1-0 duel.

What they saw was a lackluster game with routine plays, fair pitching, mediocre fielding and somewhat less than robust hitting. The biggest hit was a double by the American League's Albie Pearson, the littlest All-Star of them all.

The National League scored the tie-breaking run without the aid of a hit, the run crossing the plate when New York Yankee Joe Pepitone chose to make an unassisted out at first instead of throwing to the plate.

The National League managed only six hits, and four of those were scratch. The American League had 11 hits but also nine strikeouts and Bobby Richardson, another Yankee, had the misfortune to hit into two double plays.

The little second baseman, usually sure-handed missed a throw by third baseman Frank Malzone which led to a run.

The biggest noise came when the fans booed whenever a Yankee came to bat. Unfortunately, the Yankee contingent did little to cover itself with glory. Peppitone, the only American League to go all the way, went 0 for 4 and struck out twice. Richardson hit into four outs, in two times at bat. Only Jim Bouton, the young pitcher, did well. He hurled one perfect inning.

Civil Rights Action on Three Fronts

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional hearings on the administration's civil rights program proceed on three fronts today, while at the White House President Kennedy appeals to women's organizations for help in easing racial tensions.

The Senate Commerce Committee called the Justice Department's civil rights chief, Asst. Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall, for further questioning about a bill to ban racial discrimination serving the public.

Marshall, in his opening testimony Monday, said if the bill

gotta play tomorrow. I gotta play every day."

It was Willie who scored the first run, after drawing a second inning walk and stealing second against right-hander Ken McBride. It was Willie who broke a 1-1 tie with a sharp third-inning single and it was Willie who broke a 3-3 tie in the fifth with a run-scoring infield grounder.

"I don't care where you are, Mays always helps you," said San Francisco manager Alvin Dark, who piloted the National League to their fifth victory in the last seven games, with one ending in a tie. The National League trails over-all, 17-16-1.

Dark employed 18 players while Houk manipulated 21 of his 25 men. Each used five pitchers. Larry Jackson, who succeeded starter Jim O'Toole, was hit the hardest, but was credited with the victory. Jim Bunning, who took over for starter McBride in the fourth, yielded one unearned run in two innings but was charged with the loss. His streak was broken after nine consecutive scoreless innings in All-Star competition.

Rookie Ray Cupp of Philadelphia, southpaw Hal Woodeshick of Houston and the Dodgers' great Don Drysdale finished up for the Nationals. Bouton, lefty Juan Pizarro of Chicago and Dick Ratz, Boston's brilliant relief ace, finished up for the American League.

Rockefeller Still a Firm Candidate

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The firm message has been passed to Republican leaders that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller has every intention of pursuing vigorously his quest for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination.

At what some of his friends believe is the low mark of his popularity, the New York governor is depicted as determined to stay in the contest for a nomination some party members thought he had forfeited when he married the divorced mother of four children.

As evidence of the Rockefeller intentions, associates point to the maintenance at full strength of the presidential task force of trained assistants the governor has been assembling in New York City and Albany for several years.

They cite the quiet Rockefeller selling job being carried on by George L. Hinman, New York Republican national committeeman. Hinman, who heads the presidential task force with headquarters in Rockefeller Plaza, is emphatic about his man's availability.

Rockefeller himself is reported to feel that politically things have got so bad they are bound to get better. From an acknowledged top running position he has plummeted to a level at which, for the moment, he can count with certainty on not much more than New York's convention support.

This circumstance finds Republicans divided on the issue of whether the governor will stick it out, despite the assurances coming out of New York.

One prominent party member who maintains neutrality between prospective presidential nominees said he isn't so sure.

"He quit in 1959 when there was a whole lot less reason for him to get out than there is now," this Republican said. "If he could change his mind then, he could change it again."

A Rockefeller booster said the situation isn't the same as that in which the governor found the field had been sewed up for the nomination of then Vice President Richard M. Nixon. He added that nobody is likely to get a pre-convention lock on the nomination as Nixon did.

Some steps are being taken aimed at brightening the governor's political image.

Rockefeller's associates believe a settlement is near by which his wife's four children by her previous marriage can be with their mother part of the time.

The involvement of the children seems to have heightened criticism of the marriage far beyond

11 Couples Involved by Law

BENTON, Ark. (AP) — What would you do if you suddenly learned that your marriage was illegal?

For at least 11 Arkansas couples, and probably hundreds more, the answer is simple: Get re-married.

Four couples will do just that next Saturday night, and seven more will re-wed Sunday.

The Social Security Administration unearthed a 1941 Arkansas statute recently in announcing that it would not pay benefits to wives or widows who were not legally married.

The 1941 law states that any marriage in which the groom was under 18 years of age or the bride under 16 is null and void. Since the April announcement, many Arkansas marriage licenses have been plucked out of dresser drawers and scrutinized.

Several couples have re-married in private ceremonies.

But four Saline County couples will get re-hitched in a mass ceremony near Benton on Saturday night, and seven Jefferson County couples will tie the knot again Sunday at Star City.

For some, like Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Gentry of the New Summit community near Benton, it will be their first church wedding. When they married the first time it was at Mrs. Gentry's home. Gentry was working in Detroit, Mich., and had only a few days in Arkansas.

He was 18 at the time, but his wife was 14. They now have two sons and a daughter.

"There's not much difference than when he married the first time," Gentry said. "My friends are ribbing me now, just like they did then."

He said the Saline County couples all are neighbors, discussed the law, and decided to re-marry en masse.

Charles Markels said the law gave him opportunity to prove to his wife again that he loves her.

"Wives worry about that, you know," he said. "I just want to show her again that I love her. Sure, there's been some kidding. But I felt like it wasn't a mistake the first time, and I feel like it's not a mistake now."

Mrs. Markels just sighed.

At the point the governor expected, the belief is that this could be mitigated by satisfactory custody arrangements publicly announced.

The governor and his new wife have about completed the political circuit in New York, where their receptions have been friendly. They will make their first out-of-state appearance late this month at the governors' conference in Miami Beach, Fla.

NOTICE

To All Bank And-Or Federal Savings And Loan Associations Customers

Congress recently passed a law requiring all payers of interest and/or dividends of $10.00 or more to any one person during each calendar year to report these payments to the Internal Revenue Service. These payers are also to furnish the recipients Social Security or Identifying number to the IRS with each reported payment. This is not a New Tax. The identifying number system required by law simply provides the Internal Revenue Service with a means of verifying whether all interest and dividends received by taxpayers or credited to their accounts have been included in their tax returns.

The Internal Revenue regulations provide a penalty of $5.00 which may be imposed upon any taxpayer who fails to supply his Social Security or Identifying number to a payer on interest or dividends.

PLEASE BEAR IN MIND THAT BANKS AND SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS ARE NOT THE ONLY ORGANIZATIONS REQUIRED TO SECURE SOCIAL SECURITY OR IDENTIFYING NUMBERS. YOU WILL LIKELY RECEIVE SIMILAR REQUESTS ON STOCKS, BONDS, OR ANYTHING THAT PAYS INTEREST OR DIVIDENDS.

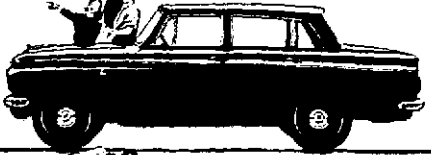

In order to complete this program of securing Social Security and Identifying number, please call or go by your bank or savings and loan association and give them your number or complete the information on the form below and mail it in.
